

INTRODUCTION

This edition of the journal includes four contributions by the members of the Department of Administrative Law and Administrative Science of the Law Faculty of Charles University.

The individual papers differ in their topic selection. Their common purpose is to draw the attention to some theoretical and legislative problems as well as the issues related to the application of the Czech Administrative Law. The authors examine the possible solutions with respect to the general trends in the development of this branch of law and theory.